Theory and Practice

The fire that rages on our streets begins to burn hotter and brighter.

Anarchists, Antifa, BLM & Co. are unfolding their scripts upon us in their quest for power.

Instead of impotently venting frustrations by posting laments on Twitter, Facebook and Youtube, how about doing something useful, powerful and practical to curtail the spread of the disease? To eventually defeat the Marxists who want to take over our land.

They are organized and they are winning this round, we are not.

They have big money and we don't; at least I know of no one who is using funds in the organized matter to oppose the mob. Talking how you got guns and will defend your freedom at this stage of the game isn't it.

Don't bet on the federal government and local police to take care of your lives. They can't and they wouldn't. Successful Trump re-election may work to some degree. It can also make the fire rage hotter and angrier.

What we need are practical ideas of how to unleash our combined brain power against the demons.

They play dirty and so should we. They silence our voices and we should give them the taste of their own medicine. Get together in private chat rooms with the people you trust, to determine strategies, to identify who the enemies are and how to put a crimp on their efforts to subvert the country. There are more of us than them!

I have some ideas of my own. They will be posted later.

If you write to me, I will publish your ideas here (I'll be the ultimate judge and editor). Please don't suggest anything illegal – we are not the KKK and vigilantes. But there are millions of Americans out there with varied experiences and knowledge, capabilities and wisdom. Like me, they are frustrated that they cannot do anything against the encroaching scum. Well, here is our chance.

Your privacy will be respected.

Please submit your ideas in plain text. No attachments of any kind are acceptable.

Don’t forget to add this website to your bookmarks and pass it along to friends. In case we get banned.

Criminals cannot be permitted to take over the United States of America.